No. 132.

By Telegraph.

HALIFAX, N. S., August 16.
Rioting was resumed in Belfast on Saturday night. On Sunday morning there was fighting with rifles, on the Shankhill road and Old Falls road. One person was killed and many wounded. The sides are equally divided. Many houses have been riddled with bullets. The military have restored order, and all was quiet last night, but the crowds are still sullen. Thirty-six miners were killed in the Leigh colliery.

The new Government steamer Acadia, for the protection of the fisheries, arrived here this morning after a run of forty-two hours from New York.

Depuis and Brien, Dry Goods Merchants, of Montreal, has failed.

Pleuré, Pneumonia, has broken out among the cattle at the quarantine station at Quebec. Two herds of Jersey-poll—Angus breed—worth sixty thousand dollars have been slaughtered.

The Sultan of Morocco sends a delegation to Germany to improve relations between the two countries, and to secure German officers and Krupp guns.

FROM BURIN.

[SPECIAL TO THE COLONIST.]

BURIN, AUGUST 16.

The s.s. Leopard arrived on Saturday night and left for Placentia at 10 a.m. with Bishop Power, Fathers Brennan, Born, Fitzgerald, Clancey and Ryan. Messrs. Donnelly, Emerson, Tobin, Callahan, and Greene, en route for St. Kyrans, where the visitors landed. Father Douthy came on board, and there were profuse demonstrations of welcome.

The Court opened here at 10 o'clock to-day. After some business had been transacted the Court rose till 3 p.m. At noon an exciting aquatic contest took place, at which Judge Pinsent and the elite of Burin were present. The winning boat was manned by Messrs. Scott, Milley, LeMessurier and Emerson, Coxswain, Mr. M. H. Carty. The defeated crew were the Sheriff, Carter, Walsh, Kelligrew, Burke, Coxswain, Major Fawcett.

Thirty bankers were out this season. Their and the local catch was over fifty thousand quintals.

FROM TREPASSEY.

[SPECIAL TO THE COLONIST.]

TREPASSEY, this evening.

The steamer Acton was built at Low Walker, 1874 and registered in London, England, the same year, gross tonnage 1646, owned by Edmund Hanny Watts, London, commanded by Capt. Gowing, left Montreal on the 8th inst., with cargo of spruce deals for London, she called at Sydney to replenish her bunkers with coal and left there on the 11th inst., and at 2 p.m. the next day she struck Drakes Point Eastern Head of St. Shotts, and became a total wreck, yesterday's sea broke her up. The Captain allowed himself to be about thirty miles off Cape Pine at the time. The steam-tug Favorite will take the Captain and crew to St. John's. Some two years ago the eastern and western head of St. Shotts was investigated by Mr. Neville, as to which head was the most suitable for a fog alarm, and I believe the western head was decided upon. But since that time nothing has been heard about it and St. Shotts and neighborhood has picked up 9 steamers and some sailing vessels; but it is not our place to condemn, as it is to our benefit that no fog alarm be placed there. But the next steamers crew may not fare as well, and all hands may find a watery grave, and then it will be too late for a fog alarm.

CAPE RACE, NOON.
Wind west; fresh, fine, clear. Schr. Excelsior, of Aberystwith, passed inward at 2 o'clock.

THE LABORERS' RACE.

HOW THE BUTTERCUP WON.

AIR:—[Sweet Little Buttercup.]

Pull up the Buttercup!
Pull up the Buttercup!
Don't let the others go by;
Oh, pull up the Buttercup!
Pull up the Buttercup!

To conquer the Myrtle now try.

She is winning all races,
But great goodness gracious,
Don't let her vanquish you too;
Put on all your big muscles
For a very hard tussle,
You are a strong strapping fine crew.

CHORUS.—Pull up the Buttercup, etc.

Oh, look now how they're going,
How hard they are rowing—
A terrible struggle, to win;
There, the buoys they are rounding
With hearts fairly bounding,
The question now which will be in?

CHORUS.—Pull up the Buttercup, etc.

Ha! The Buttercup's leading,
Behold how she's speedily,
She's doing it squarely and grand;
And there's "Little Buttercup,
Sweet little Buttercup,"
Coming from Bennett's brass band.

CHORUS.—Pull up the Buttercup, etc.

Up the course she comes spinning,
And across the line, winning
By two or three lengths of the boat;
Now three cheers for the beauty
That well did her duty,
'Tis a victory worthy of note.

CHORUS.—Hurrah! for the Buttercup,

'Rah for the Buttercup!
She conquered the others quite spry;
Well done the Buttercup,
Old fashioned Buttercup,
You made the proud Myrtle look shy.

"CLASSES AND MASSES."

(Toronto Globe.)

Gladstone in his last great speech hit upon a phrase which promises to become classical. He said Home Rule was a question between the "classes and the masses," meaning by this that wherever there was a highly privileged, publicly, endowed profession, almost every member of that profession was an anti-Liberal. Unjust privilege, legalized monopoly, hereditary position, traditional dignity and authority, were all, in short, naturally and necessarily sworn foes to everything like genuine liberality, because they all instinctively felt that such liberality, was their sworn foe, and if it had its way, would speedily be their ruin and destruction. This witness is true, as the experience of all ages makes manifest. Whenever the common craft is in danger, it is surprising how speedily inter-class difficulties and jealousies come to an end. Nothing, of course is said about the craft, nor is their anything hinted about selfish considerations. A higher flight is necessary, and more smoothly-flowing phrases are indispensable. The "patriotic" cry is sometimes wrought for all it is worth, and self-sacrificing considerations for the ignorant and infatuated people regulate professedly all that is proposed. Sometimes the affectation is that the Church is in danger, and in the classic words of our Ottawa Premier, the necessity for "stemming" the on-rushing tide of infidelity is paramount. Sometimes the morals of the masses are said to be "fearfully corrupt," and call for a decided and united effort, is beyond all question.

Reprobates become pathetic over the abounding iniquity, and debauchees weep as they think of the downward path in which so many are going. But self is ever at the bottom of all the rant, of all the cant, and of all the tears. The Church is really not in danger, and they know it. Neither is the commonwealth or social order. But their special and unjust privileges and pickings are. They know that by these things they have their wealth, and their ease, and their honors. And they tremble when inquisition is made least the revelation be awkward and the overturn decidedly unpleasant. No wonder that they shout "revolution," and violently insinuate something like socialism and infidelity against all who question their inherited right to rule.

They are the classes, in short, privileged; sacred, superfluous, the very pivots on which creation revolves, and to meddle with them or their rights is almost as awfully presumptuous as to talk of abolishing the law of gravity itself. They naturally refer to all outside of their own privileged circles as the "masses," sometimes with a particularly significant adjective prefixed. It may be "the ignorant masses." It sometimes is the "unwashed." "Uncultivated" is always implied, whether expressed or not, and generally it is a subject of lamentation that these "masses" are so "disrespectful" and "ungrateful" withal. That old genial, red-nosed toady and tuft-hunter, Horace, has made profanum vulgus classical, and no doubt he and his brother barnacles were always shocked when any of the tribe came between the wind and their gentility. Of course it has always been taken for granted that these "masses" could not think for themselves. They were too dull and ignorant for that. Poor fellows, they needed some wise friends to rule over them and to keep them from being imposed upon. If they could only just be persuaded to do the right thing and follow their "pastors and masters," what a happy thing it would be! Ah, the blessedness of keeping them from "demagogues"! In other words, say those privileged ones, if they would only but believe in us and take the law at our lips! Yes! but that is just getting to be the very thing they won't do. They have, to be sure, been doing so for generations. The born "booted and spurred" have been riding to death or the devil the born "saddled and bridled," and the operation, while pleasant enough to the riders, has become utterly intolerable to the ridden, while the decided and growing sulkiness of the overdriven beasts of burden becomes, every day and where, more evident, to the utter disgust and astonishment of the wonderful equestrians, who are even in some cases in danger of being invited to try on the bit and saddle for a change.

This is the great fight that is going forward in one form or another the world over—the fight between the "classes" and the "masses," the privileged thousands and the toiling, suffering, sweat-begrimed millions. It is at all different stages, from the Nihilist plottings of Russia to the platform discussions and ballot box contests of professedly free countries and enfranchised peoples. The "poor blind Samson" may be in some cases only moving uneasily in his troubled dreams. But even such movements are not without hope, though the unjustly privileged cry out in fear and strongly counsel "Strong measures."

It is this old, yet ever new, contest that Gladstone, with trumpet voice, calls at present the millions of his countrymen. He puts the issue frankly and fearlessly. He claims that the friends of unjust privilege are all against him, and he invites all to choose, and to choose speedily, their sides in a contest where neutrality is impossible. The "classes" and the "masses," he says, this day "stand in presence," and no power on earth can prevent the inevitable contest. They have already in other days joined issue, not once or twice, but often, and in every individual case the final and mature judgment of the world has been that the "masses" have been reasonable in their claims and eventually victorious in their efforts. What is the whole history of Britain for instance? What but a record of the never-ending, still-beginning contest between might and right, between the landed and the landless, between the master and his slave, between Cedric and his bond thrall, between, in short, the "class" which wants to do all the boss-work and law-making and the "mass" which has to delve and do everything as it is told. And the perennial contest will go on till "class" has passed a self-denial ordinance so wide and comprehensive that it will be "class" no more, so far as there is injustice in the phrase; and when the "mass" shall have ceased from its restlessness and dissatisfaction by being put in possession of all that justice can claim or the teaching of the prophet of Nazareth can either indicate or enjoin. In this sense the whole question is lifted up to a higher plane than that of mere Irish Home Rule. It is really far wider and more comprehensive than anything which concerns only one country or one community. It is the people's question the world over, and it will never be finally settled till the grand old commandment shall have become paramount in practice as well as in theory, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them."

EVICCTIONS IN LIMERICK.—The work of eviction goes on in the County Limerick. Last week Mr. Fred Hobson, sub-sheriff of Limerick, evicted three house tenants in Newcastlewest, as also some tenant near the village of Castletown. Yesterday the sub-sheriff proceeded to Rathpalantine, where another tenant was evicted. It is expected that some other evictions will take place, if not to-day, at an early date, in the immediate neighborhood of Banogue Bridge.

THE CORK MARKET GARDENERS AND THE LORD LIEUTENANT.—The Secretary of the Cork Market Gardeners received the following telegram, acknowledging the resolution passed by the association:—

"Viceroyal Lodge, Dublin, Aug. 3, 1886.
"Letter received. The Lord Lieutenant recognises the courtesy and cordiality of resolution, and both he and Lady Aberdeen value the expressions of regret at their departure, and the kindly good wishes for their welfare, which they fully reciprocate."

A CURIOUS OCCURRENCE.—A lively scene is reported to have occurred on the arrival of the Limerick river steamer at Kilrush a few evenings ago between an Indian judge, just returning to his native place in county Clare, and a gallant captain who resides not far from Limerick. The occurrence took place on an omnibus. The judge had a bag thrown to the ground by the captain and its contents all smashed. On reaching Kilree the judge immediately put the case in the hands of a solicitor, who has intimated to the captain that he will have to answer to an action for £10,000.

LABOR TROUBLES IN THE UNITED STATES.

The condemnation of the Knights of Labor by Leo XIII was probably caused by the disorder and anarchical tendencies of the labor movement in the United States. That there is much distress and wrong inflicted on the working classes, even in the great Republic, through the cruel exactions of capital goes without saying; but whether these evils can be remedied by Trades Unions or Knights of Labor strikes, which are often instigated by selfish, immoral, dishonest men, is very doubtful. The history of strikes, in the old world and the new, with very rare exceptions, proves that they have brought manifold evils, and very frequently ruin, to the laborers engaged in them. Whilst blame may sometimes be brought home to the foolish or ignorant people, who may be misled in attempts to coerce their employers to comply with demands for higher wages, yet the chief responsibility rests with the capitalists or employers of labor. Employers too frequently treat the workers as if they were competitors in trade. They regard labor as a necessary quantity in business to be hired as cheaply as possible, to be treated as an enemy, and to be destroyed at the first opportunity. The modern business method is, let every man look out for himself and let the weakest go to the wall. Charity has no place in business. Trade is run on moral principles, and labor is only reckoned as so much corn, or general merchandise. This is the false principle that guides many employers and it lies at the very root of the labor troubles of modern society, and which threaten to result in socialism, or still worse, the chaos of anarchy. It is at the bottom and is the source of every mistake which employers make in regard to the workingman. In making his calculations for purchase of machinery, the raw material to be used, and sales of goods, the workman is thought of last, and the question is how low his services can be hired. The necessities of the poor are taken advantage of, they are put in badly ventilated rooms, and the lives are ground out of them, for barely enough wages to keep body and soul together. Besides this, individuals and corporations tyrannize over the laborer, in many instances interfering with the rights of conscience and persecuting those who stand up in the interest of truth and justice. Under these circumstances it is little wonder that workingmen have learned the baneful lesson of retaliation, and in the struggle which is taking place wisdom, charity and justice may at length assert themselves in such a compromise between capital and labor as will be for their mutual good.

WHAT OTHER COUNTRIES ARE DOING FOR AGRICULTURE.

ILLINOIS.—(Continued.)
ENTOMOLOGICAL WORK.

Prof. S. A. Forbes, State Entomologist of Illinois, is now located at this university, where he holds the position also of Professor of Entomology and Zoology. With the help of several assistants, he is carrying on, not only his teaching duties, but is also pursuing many very interesting lines of experimental work. A careful examination of the results of observations made during the past year with regard to the codling worm in apples, which will be of great use, not only to that State, but to fruit-growers in all parts of America, had just been concluded at the time of my visit. The object was to determine the precise effect of the use of Paris green in preventing the destruction of the apple crop by this insect. The experiments with the remedy have been conducted along with careful check experiments, on trees adjacent, not treated at all, and exact results reached by the careful handling and examination of every apple produced on the trees under inspection. Over 16,000 apples have been thus carefully scrutinized, and the result shows that about two-thirds of the loss arising from this source may be prevented by the use of Paris green.

Insects injurious to corn, which is the staple crop of Illinois, have absorbed a large part of the time and attention of the staff in this department for the past year, and an additional year or two of patient observation will be required to complete the work.

A multitude of facts have been brought together regarding the food of birds, also on the habits and food of fishes. An extensive and successful series of experiments have been made in the way of introducing disease among injurious caterpillars for the purpose of destroying them.

Illinois was one of the first states to recognize the important bearing of entomology on agriculture, by the appointment of a state entomologist, and the vast array of valuable facts which have been accumulated and given to the public on the annual reports of the several scientific men who have held the office during the past twelve or thirteen years, have abundantly justified the wisdom of that proceeding.

REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE.

The total expenses vary from $60,000 to $70,000 per annum, of which the teaching staff reach about $28,000. The salaries of the Professors range from $1,800 to $2,000. That of the Regent is $3,600.

The farm has been so conducted for several years past, that the revenue has exceeded the expenditure; but to bring about this result it has been necessary to reduce the proportion of experimental work, and to leave undone many things which should have been undertaken.

CONCLUSION.

Notwithstanding all the advantages offered in this institution to those desiring a thorough course in agriculture, out of a total number of 356 students attending during 1884, only 21 were preparing themselves for agricultural pursuits.

Correspondence.

The Editor of this paper is not responsible for the opinions of correspondents.

(To the Editor of the Colonist.)

DEAR SIR,—

In Friday's issue of your paper, a writer from Brigus, over the signature of "Fair Play," seems to question the justice of Mr. T. Hanrahan's appointment to the office of Inspectorship of R. C. Schools, and asserts that "there are a few men"—of which few "Fair Play," I presume, considers himself one—"in Conception Bay who have spent a life-time teaching," more competent to fulfill the arduous duties of such an important position than is the present nominee. Without meaning to in any way express a doubt as to the perfect competency of any teacher in Conception Bay to fulfill the duties of his station, I do say, and regret in being able to do so, that there is not another amongst those who are natives, with the exception of Mr. H., fully competent to take such a high office. But the fact of so few men being found among teachers in this country of this advanced state of education required of an incumbent of such an office as that of the Inspectorship of schools, is not the fault of teachers. As a class in Newfoundland, they receive salaries not such as to warrant their endeavoring to acquire that high degree of education, which, in other countries, is made necessary for those to possess who pursue teaching as a profession; but consider it as a mere stepping-stone to more remunerative employment, instead of giving it its merits as being the most honorable of callings, and endeavoring, by a combined effort, to bring it to that perfection in system which its importance is entitled to. Nor will teaching ever be a success in our schools until the Government increases the grant for educational purposes to such an amount as will enable the respective boards of education to give such salaries as will secure permanent teachers who are intellectually up to the requirements of the times.

I can assure "Fair Play," that if Mr. Hanrahan is appointed Inspector of Roman Catholic Schools, he ("Fair Play") after Mr. H.'s first examination at his school, will be ready to agree with me that Mr. Hanrahan is a thorough gentleman, and though youthful in appearance is more than equal in experience and intellectual abilities to the requirement of his office.

Hoping that I have not trespassed too much on your space, I am, Mr. Editor, Yours obediently,

A NATIVE.

[We have been requested by a friend of the gentleman referred to, not to publish anything further on this matter; but in order that both sides may be heard, we make an exception in favor of the above; and the discussion must be considered closed in our columns for the present.—Ed. Col.]

(To the Editor of the Colonist.)

DEAR SIR,—I wish to say, through the columns of your valuable paper, just a few words with reference to the local roads of Brigus. It was my intention to lay before the public a few particulars concerning the management of the local roads in this town; but owing to other business matters I shall only speak of one road in particular. This road leads from the main line in a southerly direction, and it is the only means by which the people having gardens on or near it can bring the crops of the same to their different homes.

This is one of the local roads of Brigus, and under the management of Mr. Wilcox. Now, up to the present, for the past two or three years, nothing has been done towards its improvement. About three weeks ago men were sent to this road in working order, so that a load could be brought without danger to man and beast. These men were placed under Mr. Butler, who, it appears, expended the money in making good the road as far as the gateway leading to his own farm. The road, further on, which passes many other gateways as well as his, is marked out, but nothing done in the way of improvement.

Now, I ask you, Mr. Editor, and the public in general, is it justifiable that such proceedings should be carried on in this most outrageous manner.

I shall conclude with saying that if the road in question is not finished further than at present, not only Mr. Butler but our local road director will hear from me again, and perhaps in a manner they little expect.

I am, Mr. Editor, yours, etc.,

VINDEK.

Brigus, August 13th, 1886.

THE SCOTCH CROFTERS.

The Daily News Edinburgh correspondent, writing on July 31st, says:—At the end the long delayed expedition proceeded with unexpected rapidity. The Assistance, the Ajax and the Nigel, conveying the marines and the police, instead of staying on Friday night at Tobermory, sailed direct for the island which was their destination, and which they reached by about ten o'clock. The weather was very favorable for the voyage, and similar good luck was experienced on Saturday morning for the debarkation, which was conducted with far less difficulty than might have been expected. The people were greatly interested, but were remarkably quiet in their demeanor. The police, who were the last to come ashore, were under the command of Captain Mackay. They are a fine body of men, who look well fitted for hard, rough work. The marines and the constables who were landed at Scarnish seemed in excellent spirits, buoyant as if out on a holiday. They were speedily formed into line, and then marched by the shore on towards the inn. The people were very much surprised when they heard of the extent of the Government expedition, and the opinion generally expressed is that Skye and other western districts will also be visited. The Three men think that Skye stands more in need of attention of this kind than their own island. In official quarters the opinion is that the work in hand will not be troublesome. The land law reformers attach considerable importance to the work of the new Land Court, which is now beginning its duties. Upon the result of its operations the peace and well-being of the Highland districts in the immediate future will materially depend.

A telegram from Oban on Sunday night says:—News has just been received here that the Three expedition have fully accomplished their work on the island. Forty-nine writs were served. The crofters offered no opposition to the proceedings, and no demonstration took place.

LIFE IN RUSSIA.

Russia is like a vast prison. The prisoner in a dungeon can walk within certain confines as the freest. It is only when he would go farther that he encounters the walls and is stopped. So in Russia as long as you remain within a narrow limit, you may possibly forget you are in prison. It is difficult to forget it, though, when you stir. The walls, the officers, meet you at every turn. On arriving at a hotel the first thing demanded is your passport, which you must carry to the police and have registered and stamped you, by the way, having to foot the bill for the registration and stamp. When you leave a city the police must again be notified, and from beginning to end it seems as if every corner is suspected of being a Nihilist dynamite. It is dangerous to converse on social or political topics. Each suspects the other spying. It is so easy to be denounced and so easy to be waltzed off to Siberia, that the truth of the proverb, "Silence is golden"; is appreciated in no other part of the earth better than it is in Russia.

LISZT'S LAST HOURS.

A correspondent writes:—Franz Liszt died on Saturday night, July 31st, at Bayreuth. About a week ago his illness was announced as a mere cold. He was already ill, however, when he arrived at Bayreuth, and it was contrary to his doctors orders that he attended the performance of "Tristan and Isolde," in the series of Wagner performances last Sunday, the 25th ult. He had to be carried in an armchair into his daughter's box. The auditorium being quite dark he could not be seen by the public, and was thus spared the trying ordeal of a popular welcome; but it was afterwards reported that he had been in a nervous, tearful state during the whole performance. On Tuesday his cold turned to inflammation of the lungs. He lost strength rapidly, and on Friday became delirious. The last Sacraments were administered to him on Saturday, and he then had a glimmering of returning consciousness, but he never completely rallied. He died at the house of Herr Frohlich, near Wagner's villa Wahnfried.

Through a great part of his life Liszt was afflicted with a nervousness which almost amounted to hysteria, and this culminated at times in a religious melancholia nearly bordering on insanity. His friends tried several times to dissuade him from shutting himself up in a monastery. He had, however, almost entirely outgrown his malady when, in 1864, he took holy orders. He was ordained in the chapel of the Vatican by his friend Monsignor Hohenlohe, since Cardinal. Nor was there much remnant of nervousness in Liszt at ordinary times during these late years. He often came to Vienna, and used to lodge in modest apartments occupied by his sister on a second floor in the Schottenhof. All day long his rooms were crowded with visitors, and he seemed to tire of chatting with his company. The last time he was in Vienna I called upon him, and found him surrounded as usual by musicians, musical critics, and opera singers of both sexes. All addressed him as master, and the ladies, as well as several of the men, kissed his hand in Austrian fashion—a form of salutation to which he lent himself with quite a pontifical complacency. He was very merry, and talked a great deal about his trip to England. I had a short conversation with him about music in our country, and he observed "England is the home of music," adding with a laugh "At least it is the home where musicians are best treated." He also remarked that there was so much congregational singing in English churches that our people in the mass probably sang more than any people on earth, and he was curious to know whether trained choirs and congregations practised much together on week days. "There ought to be congregational practise," he said; "the effect of a whole congregation singing together in good time is magnificent. The great pity is that in our churches we cannot get the people to sing."

Liszt had two daughters, one of whom was married to the French statesman, Emile Ollivier. She was of great intelligence, gentleness, and modesty, and was much admired by Parisian society during the brief period of her husband's Premiership in 1870, when she did the honours of his official residence in the Place Vendome. She died some years ago. Liszt's other daughter was first married to Hans von Bulow, and afterwards to Richard Wagner.

THE CORK UNITED TRADES' ASSOCIATION.—The Secretary of the Trades' Association, received yesterday the following telegram from his Excellency:—"I have received with great satisfaction the illuminated copy of resolution of meeting of Cork United Trades' Association; such a record from such a source is deeply appreciated by Lady Aberdeen and myself. — LORD LIEUTENANT, Dublin."

Local and other Items.

The Gog and Magog cricket match will be played at Quidi Vidi to-morrow.

The s.s. 'Plover' arrived at Little Bay, North, at 7.30 p.m. on Saturday, on her way north.

The daily catch of fish per man at Witless Bay does not exceed a quarter of a quintal.

The highest point attained by the thermometer for the last twenty-four hours was 69, the lowest 43.

The s.s. 'Curlew' arrived at Harbor Briton at 7.45 p.m. yesterday, and left again at 9 on her way West.

Local and other Items.

There was no fish in the public coves to-day.

The members of the Green Sprig C.C. are requested to meet in the usual place this evening at 8 o'clock, sharp.

Five or six cases of drunkenness were before the Court this morning. Two were fined $2 each; the rest were discharged.

A meeting of the Avalon Cricket Club will be held this evening at the usual place at 8 o'clock, a full attendance is requested.

The banking schooner Columbine, Capt. John H. Williams, arrived at Bay Bulls from the Banks on Saturday evening with 180 qtls. fish.

Messrs. Harvey and Burchell are measuring the lines for a new system of sewerage throughout the town. This is a step in the right direction.

S. H. Parsons, Esq., is taking views in various parts of the city and suburbs, to be mounted for the stereoscope and for Christmas cards for the fall trade.

The banking schooner Ocean Gem, Captain Nelson, arrived to Messrs. March & Sons from the Banks on Saturday evening with 550 qtls. fish.

The schooner Caroline, Capt. Mochler, arrived here from Burin at 8 p.m. on Saturday. Capt. Mochler reports small boats doing well. On Thursday, as he passed outside of Burin, a good deal of fish was being caught with hook and line. He passed five or six dories loaded with fish that had been taken in cod-nets. In St. Mary's Bay Capt. Mochler picked up a large quantity of wrecked cod-netting which will be found advertised elsewhere.

A regatta will be held at Topsail on to-morrow week. A grand programme has been arranged, and judging from the reputation of the gentlemen on the committee, a good time may be anticipated. The fishermen from all adjacent harbors will participate, and will row in the fishery boats now in ordinary use. On shore a pig race, a wheelbarrow race, a greased pole and a sack race will be the attractions. There are three yachts in Topsail at present, and the Committee, (if the collection be sufficiently large,) to ask the gentlemen who own them, to allow the boats to be run for a cup, as a prize. This is a branch of racing that should be encouraged, as no other form of sport presents so many attractions to tourists from Canada and the United States. Beside, the building of yachts would open a new industry to our builders and sailmakers. We wish the Committee a fine day and every success.

The s.s. Polino, Captain LaChance, arrived here at noon to-day from Montreal and intermediate ports. The ship left Montreal on the 11th inst., and arrived at Quebec at noon the following day. Some freight and passengers were taken on at that port, after which the boat left for Sydney, where she arrived at 10 a.m. on Saturday. After discharging some cargo, the Polino proceeded to Cow Bay for bunker coal, after which she left for this port. The weather had been fine up to this time, but while nearing this side of the Gulf about midnight on Saturday, a great rain-storm came on accompanied by deafening thunder and the most vivid lightning. The storm continued all through the night till daylight, when the ship was off St. Pierre, when it ceased. The remainder of the run was fine. The boat brought about half cargo of freight and will sail again on Wednesday evening. The late Commander of the Polino has been transferred to the new ship of the same line, the Greenland. The following passengers came on the Polino:—

Montreal—Miss Hanford. Quebec—Rev. E. G. Stobu, Rev. G. D. Mathews, D.D. Sydney—Miss Snow, Mr. Thompson.
